ACTIVITIES SHOW TOMORROW NIGHT

"Girl Loves Boy" Will Be Shown

The first number appearing on the student program for the Mid-Spring term is to be shown in the Recreation Room at 7:30 Friday evening, May 21. The title is "Girl Loves Boy," starring Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker.

This picture has been shown on the large circuits and has commanded the respect from newspapers in general. The following is a cutting from a newspaper describing this show:

"A symphony of love and romance. The screen's favorite sweetheart team in a comedy drama of small town life. It is one of the most delightful comedies to come to the screen. It will tug at your heart strings. It is a love story that will stir your imagination. It is a document of home spun American life."

This show is an 8 reel feature and comes to the registrar's office very highly recommended for college audiences.

The admission to this show is free to all students enrolled who bring their student activities cards. There is a 25¢ charge for any person other than students attending this show.

SENIOR COMMITTEES WILL BE ANNOUNCED MONDAY

Acting president Opal Williamson, has announced that the committees in charge of commencement activities will be announced at the Senior Class meeting, which will be held next Monday evening.

The following committees will be appointed: Baccalaureate decorations, programs for Senior Convocation, Senior dance, and decorations for Commencement.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED TO CHOOSE HONOR STUDENTS

A committee consisting of Kathryn Mackey, chairman, Hubert Fowler, Fred Franzman and Genevie Bush has been appointed to choose the outstanding graduating commercial man and woman for 1943.

A committee consisting of Altha Guernsey, chairman, Ann Thurston and Roberta Jean Miles has been appointed to choose the outstanding Journalism Senior. These awards will be made at Senior Convocation on Tuesday, June 8.

ALUMNAL ASSOCIATION TO PAY DUES

For the first time the members of the Alumna Association will be urged to pay annual dues of $1. The Association by-laws provided for the payment of the amount as dues but nothing has been done in the matter. As a result the Association has been handicapped in undertaking any constructive program in behalf of the Alma Mater because of the lack of a working fund.

CENTRAL NORMAL COLLEGE IN SERVICE

A letter from Earl Conner states that he has a ten day leave and will be home the 28th, 29th, and 30th. He has been in the hospital for yellow jaundice from which he is now recovering.

Corporal Earl Hudson writes that he is now located in Camp Swift, Texas. He is a clerk in the office and likes Texas very much as it is not as hot as Alabama or Mississippi.

A letter has been received from Mrs. Hazel

Routier Redden, who is making application to join the WAVES.

Mrs. Redden has been teaching in Stoney Creek High School during the past year. She is in the same county that her husband Leonard Redden, his brother, Everett, Everett's wife (Marguerite Harrison) and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harrison, brother of Marguerite Harrison, all of whom are graduates of Central Normal College.

A card received from the father of Ensign Alvin Beumer states that Alvin has been sent to sea duty and his address is now Ensign Alvin S. Beumer (SC), Commander Fleet Air Wing One, c/o Postmaster San Francisco, California.

Mr. Ansel Wallace writes that he is still located in Norfolk, Virginia. He has now taken up golf and seems to be horse shoe champion of the officers there. The barracks at Norfolk are of the temporary type--bare floors, unfinished window cases, unfinished plaster board walls, steel closets,

HIGH SPOTS FROM THE TRIBUTES PAID
 MR. C. A. HARGRAVE

A Biography and Tribute

(Written by President Jonathan Rigdon for the College Quarterly at the time of Professor Hargrave's death, June 2, 1927)

..The going of Prof. Hargrave, affectionately known to students and faculty as "Uncle Charlie" leaves in Central Normal College a place that must remain vacant. In length of services he surpassed all others who have ever been connected with the institution and for either the amount of work or the quality of it, few can ever hope to approach him.

..In the fall of 1880, he enrolled in Central Normal College and the following year he was graduated from the Scientific Class. He continued his college work with the Classic Class of '82. On the eve of his graduation, August 3, 1883, he and Miss Nettie Pearson were married. In the same year he became a regular member of the faculty of the College. At the death of Prof. John Steele in 1885, Prof. Hargrave became responsible for the business of the College and without intermission he discharged the duties of the office until one morning about a month ago when he admitted his strength had failed.

..Merely to mention the qualities of his character worthy of our emulation would require a large space. He was a tireless worker who had complete mastery over his own mind. He was truly an educated man. . . . He was always honest, truthful, sincere. Aside from his family and his home, his one ambition was to be helpful to young men and women seeking an education. He was plain and simple in his living. He never made a show of himself or his achievements. He was always willing and even anxious to give to others credit that in reality belonged to him. He always put himself first when any work was to be done, particularly any disagreeable work; and he always put himself last when the honors were to be bestowed. He was always kind and gentle. If to be a gentleman is to be a gentle man, then he was that. Next to his own family he loved the institution he so ably served. Next to people he loved Nature as few men have ever known it. Chiefly because of his clear thinking, he was an impressive and convincing speaker. He would probably have been the last to claim for himself merit as a writer, and yet I believe everyone who reads the last toast he ever delivered, "The Office Desk," will admit that it is a literary gem. His life and labors have gone from us, but the wealth of his manly character will long continue to be an inspiration to the thousands he has enrolled over his old office desk.

Jonathan Rigdon

IT WON'T BE LONG NOW

How many times we have exclaimed joyfully, "It won't be long now." That statement has been the password when vacation time rolled around, especially after a round of examinations. Some of the students are still saying it since we have only three more weeks of this term. However, by now some of the seniors are saying it a little half heartedly.

Yes, there was a time when we looked forward longingly to the time when we would be college graduates and thought that time would never come. It has come and it seems as if those four years have passed too quickly.

Our last year has been different from that of other graduating classes--only about half of us will really be here so it will seem incomplete. There will be boys in all parts of the world who can say on June 11th, "I should have been there."

World conditions into which we move from the rather sheltered life of college will be different, too, from those of classes of previous years. We will take our places in a world at war. Great demands will be made of us because we are college graduates and because we are teachers. Some of our class have already experienced the extra problems that war brings.

There will be times when we'll make mistakes and when we'll want to get away from it all. Then we must say: "Remember, now, you're an adult and you must take the knocks and hardships standing up. You must go on and so your part helping others along their way."

We can do it and we must. Others may misunderstand our attitudes and actions but that is always true. Let's make that "It won't be long now" mean that better conditions are coming partly because of our help.

I am on a twenty day furlough--in the hospital. It was like this. You know we are right on the seacoast. Well the other night the Japs in a sub. tried to land some spies. However our spotters saw them and opened fire on them. Where upon the sub. started firing upon our shore installations. I was in a foxhole in gunpark defending our big case of a landing when our C. O. (Comm. officer) asked for volunteers for a scouting reconnaissance party. Of course nothing would do me but to volunteer. I could go on like that forever but the truth of the matter is I have a lowly case of the mumps. Ain't that humiliate otis!!!

I missed two nice long hikes by being here. I had better close for now.

Sincerely

Pvt. Marion McGeheey

Love hits Linder's pocket book pretty hard. That man of hers made a fifteen minute phone call all the way from California--and reversed charges!----still she loves him.

We've terribly neglected this burning love of Sutherland and Rissler. In case you hadn't noticed weeks before, he's given his heart away and sealed it with a frat pin.

Will someone tell Doug Barnes to make up his mind who his main love issue is. Kathleen Mauck is taking care of a lot of his spare time now.

There's nothing like being on good terms with your in-laws---Ann Thurston spent all last week-end cleaning house for Dick's mother. And by the way, she's really on the ball with those letters---three in one day.

Have you noticed Ballinger walking around with her chest stuck out two ft. to display a super-big emblem from the Master Sgt. --he's coming to see her in July.

Let's hope Downen and her David start using the mail and patch up their difficulties.

Yarling believes in the old primitive methods of love--his caveman tactics broke Judy's glasses the other night.

Mary Childs must have had a terrific week-end--she could hardly keep her eyes open in class Mon. morning.

Mary Zwickel got quite a telegram from Bernie; he's wanting to kiss and make up but it looks like it's "no soap."

Those mile flirtations of Ruth Smith with Baitz and Robinson are just on the surface. Her heart still belongs to that man from Harvard and he's coming down this week-end.

Literally droves of coeds have been asking what happened to their dream man, Smith from I. U. He hasn't been around this week.

Laura is really going to be lonesome now that her Charles is working at night.

With as much mail as Sue Terry has been getting lately we are becoming suspicious of a love interest at home.

Notice to all professors: If you notice an abstract air about Opal Williamson--if she sits through class in a daze of pure joy,--don't lose faith in your teaching; her mind is just wandering in fields of love since she heard yesterday that Earl will be home on leave next week-end.

Blondell Skomp must have made quite a hit with that cousin of Mary Child's last week-end. We're betting Blondell goes to Brown County more often.
