The Honorable James M. Ogden Speaks to Central Normal Alumni

Following an established custom the Alumni of Central Normal held a luncheon at the time of the State Teachers Association.

Mrs. Faye Wheeler, President of the Alumni Association, presided in a very gracious manner and presented members of the faculty and speakers with apt poetical introductions. President Carl H. Grifey made the address of welcome and Dean H. M. Whisler spoke a few words of greeting. Appropriate music was furnished.

The principal address was made by the Honorable James M. Ogden, graduate of Central Normal College, and former Attorney-General of Indiana. Mr. Ogden spoke in part as follows:

"A luncheon is said to be an affair where you eat a lot of food you don't want, before talking about something you don't understand, to a crowd of people who don't want to hear you. Once there was a gifted presiding officer at a luncheon who began his remarks by saying, 'I shall not bore you by making a speech. I shall leave that for those who have been brought here for that purpose.'"

"It is always a source of pleasure to meet old schoolmates. It gives one much joy to greet those who have attended the same school as you have. It affords satisfaction to see any institution with which you have been connected grow and develop. So all of us here today are happy that we have been either directly or indirectly, remotely or immediately connected with each other and the same institution of learning.

"The Central Normal College still continues a school whose methods are a model for imitation. The graduates and former students are like one large family and the interest of the faculty in the student continues through life.

"At this college one fits himself for a congenial occupation whereby he produces more that is of value to mankind, than he consumes. At this college the lives of the members of the faculty have always been inspirations and their memories have followed the students like benedictions. The very atmosphere has been charged with knowledge and a love for humanity. It has been called the poor man's school where poverty does not hold you down nor adversity crush you. In this college, student and faculty alike, have found time to appreciate earth's beauty and have never failed to express it; and in this college students and faculty have always had the love of the little children of the town. A pessimist has been defined as one who sees a difficulty in every opportunity, and an optimist is one who sees an opportunity in every difficulty. This is the spirit of our institution because Central Normal College with its numerous difficulties has seen the opportunity in every one of them.

"We rejoice today that Central Normal College is a vital influence for inspiration and uplift in the State of Indiana and in every state.

"The best way for all of us to honor Central Normal College is to carry with us the spirit of the College into our every-day life, remembering in the words of another that:

"He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche, has accomplished his task; who has left the world a better place than he found it, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem, or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who has always looked for the best in others and given the best he had; whose life was an inspiration, whose memory a benediction."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Goss announce the marriage of their daughter, Ada Mae, to Dorrance I. Rogers of Plymouth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Rogers of Wolcott. The marriage ceremony took place at the First Baptist Church in Connersville on September 14, 1935. Mrs. Rogers is a graduate of C. N. C. and a member of the Psi Chi Omega sorority. She is now teaching in the White County Schools.

Arnis Myler, '34, died September 1, as a result of an auto wreck. His home was at Eckerty, Indiana.

Harry Regan is teaching History, Physical Education and Science at Owensburg, Indiana.

NEW PROVISIONS FOR MID-SPRING TERM

For the convenience of teachers in service who desire to do additional college work, as well as for high school graduates who prefer to begin their college work immediately after their high school graduation, we offer a Mid-Spring Term which begins in the middle of our twelve-weeks Spring Quarter. But students who take the Mid-Spring Term are organized into new or separate courses of six weeks duration; they are not thrust into the Spring Quarter courses of the regular college year; neither are students of the regular college year permitted to enroll in the Mid-Spring Term courses.

By attending the Mid-Spring Term and the following Summer Term a teacher may complete a full year of college work in two calendar years without discontinuing regular teaching service. Many schools close in time for teachers to enter college at the opening of the Mid-Spring Term.

THE DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH

Within recent months the Department of English has been thoroughly reorganized, and its offerings now conform to the standards set by the best four year colleges in the country. Courses in World Literature; World Drama; Literary Forms; Romantic Poetry; World Lyrics; Debating and Parliamentary Law; the Poetry of Spenser, Donne, Milton, and Gray; Contemporary Verse; and Opportunity English are some of the courses presented in addition to those still given, which have been offered for years.

The department has organized and sponsors an English Club to enrich the social contacts of English Majors and to lead in the investigation of many interesting extra-curricular matters. Both the Club and the department encourage original writing by students, and surprisingly excellent results are being obtained. Some of this student writing is so superior that a local literary magazine is being projected to publish and thus preserve permanently this student work which is of more than ordinary merit.

In addition to its many other interests, not listed here, the English Club will provide and confer this academic year a suitable number of awards for the production by students of outstanding original songs, poems, stories, essays, plays, editorials, feature articles, news stories, speeches, and orations.

Every effort is being made to have the work of this department not only train students to become efficient teachers but also to meet the literary needs of those students who plan to enter some profession other than teaching.

KAPPA PI BETA ELECTS SPEAKERS TO HONORARY MEMBERSHIP.

Because of the work and ability which they have shown on the mimeographed papers which they sponsored last year, those who were chosen as speakers at the Mimeograph Conference were invited to become honorary members of Kappa Pi Beta.

Kappa Pi Beta is an honorary fraternity for those who are interested in and have shown ability in the mimeograph field.

Those who were elected were: Mr. Kenneth Sipes, sponsor of Paxi Prep Press of Cotopaxi, Colorado, last year; Mr. K. E. Greene, sponsor of Pep Master, Benton Harbor High School, Benton Harbor, Michigan; Miss Mary Lou Tobert, sponsor of the Roosevelt Orator of Middletown, Ohio; Miss Lorene Bond and Miss Louise Martin, sponsors of the Green and White Outlook, Whitewater High School, Richmond, Indiana; Mr. Darrel Yoakam, sponsor of The Chief, Shawnee High School, Lima, Ohio; Mrs. Melbourne Mayhall, sponsor of the Criterion, Edinburg, Indiana; Miss Mart, sponsor of Broadcaster, Sweetser, Indiana; Mr. L. O. D. Freed, sponsor of LaOtto Torch, LaOtto, Indiana; Miss Mildred Evard, sponsor of Maroon and Blue, Garrett, Indiana.

Mr. McCabe Day, Mr. Roy O. Williams and Mrs. Milby are already members of the organization.

Active members who were elected are: Miss Margaret Black, Mr. Sterling Shaw and Mr. William Church.

Dr. D. S. Robinson, head of the Department of Philosophy, Indiana University, was in attendance at the Academy of Science Meeting here.

Nathaniel S. Brown, who attended Central Normal in 1896 and was a member of the faculty here, visited friends at Danville recently. Mr. Brown is now Vice President and General Counsel of the Washash R. R. His address is St. Louis, Mo.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Superior high school graduates may apply for scholarships by submitting to the President a transcript of credits of their high school courses, together with a recommendation from their high school principals. Any who are interested in applying for such scholarships may send to the President for the necessary forms for that purpose. There are several fifty dollar scholarships available and some one hundred dollar scholarships. The determination is made from the scholarship records. The student in any county making the highest scholastic record is awarded a four hundred dollar scholarship. A few scholarships are available to students who are able to play band and orchestral instruments.

Students who obtain scholarships are permitted to apply the account toward their tuition. One-third may be used each regular term, except in the $400 scholarship, which must be applied $100 each year. One-third of that account may be used each term for tuition payment.

ATHLETICS

Central Normal's Athletic Department closed its football season with four victories and three defeats and is now turning attention to the basketball season which promises many hard games. The schedule is arranged as follows:

Feb. 23—Huntington College at Huntington.

Feb. 27—Earlham College at Richmond. The Warriors will be without the services of Cubby Wilson, last year's forward, who pulled many games out of the fire in the last few minutes of play.

The Physical Education Department of Central Normal College will start its annual intra-mural program with the basketball season on November 16. A large number of teams is expected to participate this year and the tournament will be a round robin affair extending over the entire basketball season.

Regular classes are being held in the training of teachers for physical education and a large enrollment in that department is being enjoyed.

There is also a large enrollment in the regular classes for the training of physical education teachers.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Women's Athletic Association has elected the following officers for the year: Dorothy Burke, president; Charlotte Poland, vice-president; Clara Mae Voyles, secretary-treasurer; Evelyn Gray, point captain.

The purpose of the organization is to promote athletics among girls. To become a member, a girl must pass a written test, an achievement test, a physical examination, and take five-mile initiation hike.

A "point" system of rating physical activities is set up for the passing of tests. Each girl is required to make 100 points each term in order to retain her membership. Upon the attainment of 500 points, a letter is awarded. One thousand points entitle a member to a sweater.

Some of the activities engaged in are basketball, volley-ball, baseball, archery, tumbling, shuffleboard, badminton, deck tennis and hiking.

DELTA SIGMA KAPPA

The Delta Sigma Kappa recently held an election of officers. The following were elected for 1936-1937: President, Oreal Williamson; Vice President, Lucille Thomas; Secretary, Marion Drago; Treasurer, Mrs. Valentine Pleasant; Conductress, Ardis Shepard; Chaplin, Celena Matthews.

The girls of this organization are planning a dance to be held early in the winter term.

FRIENDS FROM HOME DAY

J. Raymond Schutz, Professor of Sociology at Manchester College, and Extension Lecturer in Economics and Sociology at Indiana University, was the principal speaker at the "Friends From Home Day" held at Central Normal College on November 15, under the auspices of the campus Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. organizations.

On this occasion the college was host to a number of parents and friends of the students during an all-day program in observance of National Religious Education Sunday.

Professor Schutz, during the past fourteen years, has made more than four thousand lectures in seventeen states, with chauteauquas, at teachers' institute, commencements, and state and national religious gatherings. His wide and varied experience and his vital interest in present-day affairs combined with his forceful personality to make his address one well worth while. The college was most fortunate in being able to secure such an outstanding leader in educational and religious work to bring the message for the day.

INDIANA ACADEMY OF SCIENCE MEETING

The fifty-second annual meeting of the Indiana Academy of Science was observed on the Central Normal College campus, November 5, 6 and 7. Many prominent men attended.

At the general session, Dr. Carl H. Grifey gave the welcoming address. The response was given by President Ray C. Friesner. T. J. Allen read a paper on "Our Versatile Atmosphere."

Among the outstanding papers given at the sectional meetings were "The Use of Copper by the American Aborigines," by Eli Lilly of Indianapolis; "Rabies, Preparation of Catted Vaccine," by C. A. Behrens of Purdue University; "Winter Injury to Trees and Shrubs of Purdue University Campus," by A. T. Guard, Purdue University; "Experimental Meningococcal Infection of Mice," by Vernal Irons, Texas, State Department of Health, Austin, Texas; "Status of Aerial Photography in Indiana—October 1936," by T. M. Bushnell, Purdue University;

"An Audio-frequency Generator for Laboratory Use," by R. R. Ramsey, Indiana University; "Wave Velocity and Intensity," by Arthur L. Foley, Indiana University; "Coordination in Liquids and the Structure of Molten Salts," by K. Lark-Horovitz and E. P. Miller, Purdue University; "The Significance of the Literary Digest Poll of 1936," by Will E. Edington, DePauw University; "Memory for Visual, Auditory and Visual-Auditory Material," by Frank R. Elliott, Indiana University; "Studies on Venomous Snakes of Indiana," presented by demonstration by William P. Allyn of Indiana State Teachers College.

Dr. Ray C. Friesner of Butler University gave an address on "Indiana as a Critical Botanical Area," and Dr. W. P. Allyn of Indiana State Teachers College presented a moving picture on "Indiana Snakes," at the Annual Dinner.

Dean Leslie I. Steinbach was chairman of the Program Committee, assisted by Dr. J. H. Evans, Dr. W. P. Tinkle, Mr. J. C. Nelson and Mr. John E. Williams. In addition to the program committee there was a local committee composed of Dr. Alson Bailey, Dr. P. R. Hightower, Mrs. Blanche Wean, C. R. Maxam and H. M. Whisler.

Two local men were elected sectional chairmen. Dr. P. R. Hightower was selected chairman of the Psychology section and Dean Leslie I. Steinbach, chairman of the Physics section. Dr. W. E. Edington of DePauw, was named President of the Academy.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT

The Music Department sponsored an unusually fine concert presented by the Kryl Symphony Orchestra on Monday evening, November 2, in Chapel Hall.

Bohumir Kryl, the conductor, is well known as an exponent of symphonic works and demonstrated his unusual ability as he conducted without score or baton. Mr. Kryl is also a world famous cornetist and played one solo during the evening.

Miss Margery Maxwell, soprano and formerly with the Chicago Opera Company, and Miss Cornelia Bona, harpist, each presented a number with the symphony.

The organization is on a coast to coast tour and it was a privilege that Central Normal College and Danville should be able to hear the program.

It is hoped that at some future date other artists may be heard at the College.

STUDENT TEACHING

Student teaching will be given in the primary grades, intermediate-grammar grades, and in high school subjects.

In supervised teaching, the student is given an opportunity to put into practice the things he has learned in his methods, psychology, and theory courses. The work consists of observation, teaching, grading, disciplining, and all other activities that are a part of the teacher's program. The student prepares lesson plans and presents them to the critic teacher for correction and suggestions before the lesson is taught.

The special outcome to be derived by observation before student teaching is to secure types of information about specific teaching situations, which the student is about to undertake. Observation parallel to student teaching gives information to teaching difficulties encountered during the student teaching.

Observation, participation, and student teaching follows in a sequence to give the student teacher an opportunity to organize the processes of learning the art of teaching with increasing complexity and to assure repetitions to secure the outcomes sought.

Participation orients the prospective teacher to a new outlook upon the possibilities of education in terms of challenges to do his best in the field of his chosen profession.

THE LATIN AND GERMAN DEPARTMENT

The Department of Latin will offer three courses during the winter term.

For first year students there will be a class in Vergil's Aeneid in which considerable parts of the Aeneid will be read in Latin and the remainder of it in English translation. There will be assigned library readings to be followed by class discussions of subjects read. This course will serve as continuation for Cicero's Orations now being given. It is also recommended to any student who, with two or three years of high school Latin, wishes to elect Latin as a major subject. This course will be fitted to such students though they have had no college Latin before. There will be grammar review.

For the second year people a course will be offered in Cicero's De Senectute et de Amicitia. This course is recommended to those who have had four years of high school Latin or one year of college Latin in addition to two years preparatory Latin. Grammar work will be continuous through this course and some library reading will be assigned also.

For third year if you have any preference for or any ability in language work we suggest you consider the possibility of a major in Latin. At the present time Latin is one of the very best subjects to elect for a major. There is a better demand for teachers in Latin than for most other subjects. In the past we have had very few Latin majors fail to secure positions the first year. If a reasonably good selection of other major subjects is made with the Latin, a student is almost certain of securing a desirable location on completion of training. Latin and Commerce has been proving a very excellent combination.

In addition to the three Latin courses mentioned above the department will offer a second term German. This will be open to the present beginning German class and to any others who have had enough German to enable them to carry second term work. German is offered for and recommended to the pre-professional students and for those preparing to meet requirements for admission to graduate schools in various subjects. We recommend it also for its great educational and cultural worth.

GYMNASIUM BURNS

About 3 o'clock on the morning of November 12, the gymnasium was discovered to be on fire. The fire department responded promptly, but the flames had already extended to most of the interior, and it was impossible to save the building. The fire was prevented from spreading to surrounding buildings, but the gymnasium was totally destroyed. A considerable portion of the loss is covered by insurance.

The Board of Trustees is taking steps to re-build. Debris is already being cleared away, and plans are being formulated for a gymnasium which the Board states will be "bigger and better than ever."

STUDENT FEES

Tuition (one term) $42.00. Laboratory fees from $2.00 to $4.00 (depending on the course). For music fees, typewriting fees, see catalog. There is no library fee. Practice Teaching $10.00 (per course). Health Fee (per year) $1.50.

THE WINTER TERM OF 1936-1937

The Winter Term of Central Normal College will open December 11, with enrollments on Friday and Saturday. Class work will begin Monday, December 14. It will be possible for students to enroll at that time but such persons will miss one day of class work.

Students may enter December 14, for their first work in College. There will be sufficient courses which do not have a prerequisite of Fall Term courses to make a full schedule for such students. It will be possible for those who enter for the Winter Term to remain for the Summer and thus complete a full college year. Any who pursue this plan will be able to complete the requirements for a Two-Year Primary or Elementary License in June of 1938 and begin a teaching position the following September.

LARGE GROUP ATTENDS
MIMEOGRAPH CONFERENCE

A larger group than ever before attended the fourth annual conference for the National Mimeograph Paper Association and Kappa Pi Beta Convention, which was held at Central Normal College on November 13 and 14.

One of the high spots of the conference was the Kappa Pi Beta Convention banquet which was held on Friday evening, November 13. An interesting panel discussion on the question of "How Can the Newspaper Help the School Most Effectively?" was held. The participants of this panel were chosen from the K. F. O. S., Huntington, Grove City and Alpha Chapters.

An informal entertainment was held Friday evening for those who were not members of Kappa Pi Beta.

The talks which were given Saturday morning were of a general nature. The discussions of the afternoon were divided according to the type of paper in which the different groups were interested and according to the job each are accustomed to do. One hour was given for each of the different groups.

The luncheon at noon gave every one an opportunity to get acquainted. An interesting program was given.

The tea dance which is always a high spot of the affair gave everyone an opportunity to meet the representatives of other schools in an informal manner.

All the papers which had been received by NMPA were on display by states and many people examined them.

The commercial exhibits were also of great interest. Duplicating supplies of many kinds were shown.

DR. CARTER GUEST SPEAKER

On Wednesday evening, November 4, at 8 o'clock, about fifty students and others assembled in the Recreation Room to enjoy the first public meeting of the recently organized English Club.

Dr. Henry Holland Carter, head of the Department of English in the Indiana University, and Mrs. Carter, his wife, were special guests of honor of the Club.

The principal address of the evening, delivered by Dr. Carter, indicated some of the major services which the study of literature renders life. In a truly masterly fashion, the speaker made many literary masterpieces glow once more with life and beauty.

Miss Jane Walterhouse sang two numbers to the delight of every one present.

ATTEND CRITIC-STUDENT
TEACHER CONFERENCE

President Carl H. Griffey, Dr. P. R. Hightower, Dr. Alson Bailey, Prof. C. R. Maxam, Prof. N. E. Winfrey and Dean H. M. ## NATIONAL YOUTH ADMINISTRATION

For four years the federal government has given assistance to needy young people who desire to go to College, but who are unable to do so without this aid. Central Normal College has been benefited by this project. We have endeavored to build up projects which will give the students the opportunity while working to serve the community in wholesome and effective ways.

A number of programs of various kinds are given each year. For example, the Pageantry Group presented a most interesting pageant in Chapel Hall on November 17. The program was Biblical in every sense of the word, and was given in the spirit of worship. On Wednesday evening, November 18, the Dramatics Group gave a three act play entitled "A Ready Made Family," which was attended and enjoyed by a large crowd. Several such programs will be given during the year.

Anyone interested in knowing more about the N. Y. A. should write to Dr. P. R. Hightower, Dr. Alson Bailey, Prof. C. R. Maxam, Normal College.

CENTRAL NORMAL PLACES ITS GRADUATES

Approximately 95% of the graduates of the four-year teachers courses of this year's class were placed in good teaching positions. Also many of the two-year elementary graduates are teaching in good positions.

Many calls were received for certain combinations which could not be filled. This was especially true of Commerce and Physical Education.

EXPENSES LOW AT C. N. C.

Many Work for Board and Room To Make Expenses Less.

Central Normal College has been known for more than one-half of a century as one of the least expensive colleges in the state. At the present time expenses have been greatly reduced. Rooms rent from 75c to $1.50 per week and board ranges from $2.50 to $4.00 per week.

Many students write to Central Normal College asking if work can be obtained to defray part or all of their expenses while attending college. Many boys and girls find about all the work they can do. The amount of work students are able to get depends largely upon the kind of service they render. Some students are always in demand.

Students should not plan to work for expenses during their first term in college. They should wait until they get acquainted and get a good start on their college work. Many students fail when they first enter college because they attempt too much before they are properly adjusted.

INDIANA STUDENT HEALTH ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting of the Indiana Student Health Association will be held December 5, at Central Normal College. Dean Steinbach is serving as President of this Association. The other officers are Henry G. Nester, Butler University, Vice-President; E. Nancy Scramlin, College Nurse of Ball State Teachers College, Secretary-Treasurer.

The Association includes college presidents, deans, deans of men, and deans of women, heads of athletic and health departments and others interested in student health. Dr. Morrison and Coach Leitzman are members and are chairmen of sub-division committees of the Association.

Mr. Frank C. Stafford, Associate Director of State Public Health, will be one of the speakers of this meeting of the Association. Dean Noyer of Ball State and Dr. Nester of Butler, will speak.

THE STUDENT HEALTH DEPARTMENT

The Student Health Department is being completely reorganized. New equipment, similar to that which was destroyed in the recent fire, has been purchased and is being installed in temporary quarters in Science Hall. The small room formerly used by the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. for cabinet meetings is being converted into a waiting room. A part of the kindergarten room has been petitioned off to provide for a consultation room.

The Health Department will be able to give the students the same type of service which it formerly provided. Medications will again be furnished to the students free of charge, and all types of immunizations will be available to those interested in protecting their health.

A STUDY IN ATTENDANCE AT CENTRAL NORMAL COLLEGE

A research study of attendance at Central Normal College has been made by Miss Aleta Thompson, a Junior student. The available data extends back as far as 1888. A careful count has been made of students enrolled by years, and in addition to the numerical list, a carefully prepared graph shows the trends in attendance from year to year. The graph is printed in another part of this Quarterly.

It would not be reliable to assume that each person was in attendance for the entire year. In the early years the attendance was more often by terms rather than by years. Perhaps the greatest change that has taken place has been the lengthening of the time which each attended. This is not apparent from data now available.

Woodrow Williams is teaching this year in Conneaut, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Fletcher Franklin announce the marriage of their daughter, Margaret, to Mr. C. Rawleigh Baker. The wedding took place August 28. Mrs. Baker is a member of Sigma Phi Kappa Delta.

NEW ALUMNI LIST

Names of Graduates With Most Recent Addresses Being Compiled.

An energetic co-ed, Miss Eugenia Johnson, is spending her spare hours each day in preparing a new list of graduates. The most recent addresses available are being used on this card index. The work is being done under the personal direction of President Carl H. Griffey who is anxious to have a mailing list for all who have been students of Central Normal College. Alumni are requested to send a postal card to the President's Office giving correct address and changes that may have occurred in names since leaving school. All such will be carefully checked with the new list.

VAN DUYN SPEAKS TO STUDENTS

Mr. Grover Van Duyn, Assistant State Superintendent of Public Instruction and a former student at Central Normal, was the Chapel speaker, Tuesday, November 24.

The subject of the address was "The Human Projector." By most vivid illustrations, Mr. Van Duyn emphasized the thought that the past is projected upon the screen of the present and that the influence of the present generation is projected into the future. The opportunity of the teacher is to project his message across to the future through his influence upon the lives of children.

Faculty and students unite in hoping that Mr. Van Duyn will soon return for another address.

Marguerite Barton is working as private secretary in the Wacot Chair Factory at Morgantown, Indiana.

Vera Minnich is teaching near Greenville, Ohio. She says she enjoys her work very much.

Rachel Gibbs writes that she likes teaching very much. The teaching of Commerce and Latin, plus the sponsoring of the Commercial Club and Junior class, seem to be keeping Rachel busy.

Sidney Amy writes that he is having a grand time organizing a Commerce Department in the Bentonville High School. His typing class has already demonstrated at P. T. A.

Elaine Esarey, located at Larwill, writes us entertainingly of exceedingly busy but happy days.

Teach School

One of the most important decisions any young person has to make is the selection of a vocation or profession. Without the breadth of view that comes with experience the youth must make his choice more or less blindly. There are a few fundamental questions, however, that can hardly escape attention in the selection of a vocation or profession. It is the purpose discussed in this article—the profession of teaching in connection with five of these fundamental questions.

First, what are the prospects for employment? Are there not many unemployed teachers? Obviously the answer is, "yes." But there are also unemployed bankers, unemployed clerks and unemployed tradesmen of every sort. There are even unemployed politicians. The vast amount of unemployment existing in our country today is distributed throughout all professions, vocations, and trades. Those young people who refuse to prepare for any type of life work which they do not find overcrowded or in which they see no unemployment will not prepare for anything. Wherever young men and women turn they see competition keen and they see many that have dropped by the wayside, but the contest goes on.

Look down the street at the filling stations—yet another is going up over there on the corner and is about ready to plunge into the fight for business. Just another station, but there is a lesson in it.

Young men and women of today must select their life's work judiciously, prepare for it thoroughly, and then go into it with the determination to fight the battle through to victory.

In planning his career, a second important question for the young person is to ask whether or not the contemplated profession or vocation is of a permanent character. Applied to teaching the question is this—will there be any need for school teachers in ten, fifteen, twenty-five, or fifty years from now? To answer this question, it is necessary only to take into consideration the nature of the teaching process. Teaching is a human and personal process and must, therefore, be carried on through human agency. This means that as long as their children are to be taught there must be teachers to instruct them. The radio, the motion picture, victrola, or television cannot replace the living teacher. It is true that these and many other new devices, materials, and methods have been introduced into teaching procedure; but, while these various innovations have increased the efficiency of teaching, they have also greatly increased the complexity of the process and have thus resulted in bringing about a need for more and better trained teachers. Further, the life situations to which young people must adjust themselves become more and more complicated with each succeeding generation; thus new educational demands are continually created. To meet these demands, formal education must continue to grow, both in time involved and in subject matter included. Consequently, a constantly increasing demand for efficient, well trained teachers may reasonably be expected.

Another item to be considered in the selection of one's life work is that of remuneration. Specifically, are the financial returns from teaching sufficient to justify one in entering the profession? It has become a common remark that teachers are poorly paid. In the past, that has certainly been true. Perhaps at present teachers should be paid more than they receive, but the significant fact is that in the past twenty-five years there has been a proportionally greater increase in the salaries of teachers than in the salaries of most other professions and vocations. The income of the teacher today compares very favorably with the average income in other vocations involving an equal amount of preparation and effort.

The constantly increasing educational needs of children, due in large part to the ever increasing complexity of the social and economic situations to which, as adults, they must adjust themselves, leads to a constant increase in the training requirements for teachers. This, in turn, has led and will continue to lead to further increase in salaries. Also, large funds are now being built up in the several states to provide for the retirement of teachers on pay thus preventing teachers from becoming dependents in old age. On the basis of the facts just enumerated, it is not too much to say that, while teaching may not be expected to lead to wealth, it does provide a satisfactory income during service and does offer economic independence in old age.

A fourth important question is—What has teaching to offer in the way of those social contacts and associations that go to make life interesting, satisfying, and happy? Whether or not one's life is interesting and satisfying and consequently, happy, depends upon many things. Outstanding among the things that contribute to happiness is the type of people with whom one associates. Teachers come into contact with refined, courteous, interesting people. The associations are pleasant and the teacher has that satisfied feeling that comes with pleasant surroundings and with the efficient performance of a worthy service.

A fifth and exceedingly important question to ask is—Am I fitted physically and mentally for teaching? To succeed in the schoolroom one must possess vitality, energy, and a reasonable share of good health. Teaching is very pleasant work, but it is also hard work. If you are sickly—or lazy—don't think of teaching.

There are also certain mental characteristics desirable in a teacher. The teacher should be interested in children of the type and age she expects to teach and should find joy in associating with them. Teaching should be a serious business and the main business of the teacher. The profession has little to offer to the young woman who assumes the attitude of merely tolerating the school room while she is prospecting in other fields; or to the young man who uses teaching as a means to work his way into some other profession and who spends most of his time thinking about four o'clock Friday evening and the last day of school.

But to the young man or woman who is in earnest about it, who possesses the necessary natural qualifications, and who is willing to make adequate preparation the profession of teaching offers permanency of employment, economic security, and satisfying social contacts and associations. Combined, these things mean happiness. What more can you expect of your vocation?
